

Kurt Schwabe

Kurt Schwabe is a Professor of Environmental Economics and Policy in the School of Public Policy at the University of California-Riverside, and an Adjunct Policy Fellow at the Public Policy Institute of California's Water Policy Center, and 2024 Fulbright Distinguished Chair of Science, Technology and Innovation. Dr. Schwabe's research focuses on economic and policy issues associated with water use, drought, and climate change, particularly among and across urban, agricultural, and environmental sectors. His papers have appeared in wide range of publications, including the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences and Nature Sustainability, is co-editor of two books on water titled, Drought in Arid and Semi-Arid Regions: A Multi-Disciplinary and Cross-Country Perspective, and The Handbook of Water Economics. Dr. Schwabe received a BA in Mathematics and Economics at Macalester College, an MS in Economics at Duke University, and a PhD in Economics at the North Carolina State University. He is a Riverside resident, a cancer survivor, is married with two kids, and in 2021, finally completed a 23-year endeavor to canoe the entire length of the Mississippi River – from Northern Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico.